

Sayuri Imai

2nd-year student at N high school, Youth with Refugees Platform

Born in 2009, Sayuri has an interest in culture, language, and the everyday lives of people around the world. This curiosity gradually led her to focus on the issue of refugees—people whose ways of life are taken away for various reasons. After entering high school, she participated in the “Four Goods Vision Project” summer school in Switzerland. During this program, she visited international organizations such as the UNHCR (United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees) and the ICRC (International Committee of the Red Cross), where she had the opportunity to hear directly from refugees and humanitarian workers. She was moved by the way they continue to pursue hope despite the hardships they face, and she strongly felt that she wanted to contribute in some way. Currently, she is a member of the Youth with Refugees Platform (YRP), where she is involved in planning and organizing events. She also serves as an executive member, contributing to the development of the organization’s policies and direction.
